Every year on 20 November, the World Children's Day globally and in India marks the anniversary of the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC) — a landmark commitment to protect every child's right to survive, learn, and thrive and grow up safe with opportunities to meet their full potential. The day brings opportunities for call to action for all stakeholders for renewed action for child rights are realized by all children.

This year's global theme, "My Day. My Rights", recognizes that every child experiences life differently — their needs can differ - yet each child deserves dignity, opportunity, and protection.

UNICEF India's campaign, "The Child in Me: My Promise to Children," urges each of us to reconnect with our own childhood journeys and make an actionable promise to today's children — to help them learn, play, feel safe, and be heard.

Building on the strong foundation, the #Promise to Children campaign calls on all of us to take small yet meaningful actions to give every child the chance to learn, play, and grow in safe and supportive environments.

Your voice has power. Your promise has impact. Together, our collective commitment can mean that every child enjoys the childhood they deserves.

This World Children's Day, take a moment to remember the child in you to make a difference for the children around you. Reflect on the promises that shaped your own life, and make one for today's young.

Join the movement — share your promise on social media and tag @UNICEFIndia with the hashtags #MyPromiseToChildren #ForEveryChild #WorldChildrensDay.
